

Having selected your puppy/rescue dog, and committed yourself to a life long partnership, give you and your new friend the best possible start with professional advice on home training, obedience training and all aspects of future dog behaviour that will benefit you both for your lifetimes.

All dogs are different and need specific understanding and training methods that suit them. Whatever the size or breed, start your puppy/dogs' education correctly before bad habits creep in. Dave will come and assess your dog in your own home, and look at temperament, breed traits and lifestyle, to advise on best training methods to use from the word "go".

Lead walking is essential whatever your dog or situation. It is quality time spent with each other and where all foundation work begins. Walking your dog on a loose lead is a priority for the comfort and long term health of your dog (and you!). Pulling on the lead can damage the throat and leg joints, leading to possible hip dysplasia in larger breeds.

Dave has 20 years full time experience as dog trainer and canine behaviourist, with all breeds and temperaments of dogs, at all levels. He is a member of the British Institute of Professional Dog Trainers, a KC Obedience judge and a registered trainer of the Kennel Club Good Citizen Dog Scheme.

From a gundog background in childhood, where his initial love of dogs was founded, Dave started obedience training & competing with a German Shepherd X Old English Sheepdog called "Max". He went on to spend many successful years in National competition obedience with his much loved German shepherds and border collies.

During his success, he was asked to teach at a Birmingham Club and then formed his own Training School at Beoley, promoting and encouraging responsible ownership and socially acceptable dog behaviour for all. He was amongst the first to be involved with the Kennel Club Good Citizen Dog Scheme, offering structured training and nationally recognized awards. One of his many successful challenges was a totally blind greyhound who achieved bronze, silver and gold awards, and went on to become a "P.A.T." dog (Pets as Therapy) visiting hospitals, nursing homes and hospices to aid the sick and elderly.

The classes led to private and behavioural training. Dave's reputation grew from treating each dog as an individual and successfully solving problems with varied techniques. His heelwork successes being fundamental in saving wear on large dogs hind legs. Recommendations by many vets followed.

In his spare time Dave was also successfully training some of his own dogs (including a new rottweiler) in Schutzhund competition (a german working dog award covering tracking, obedience and protection). Working alongside police dog trainers, he gained further recognition for his high standard of work, and use of appropriate training methods depending on the character of the dog and the job it was being asked to do.

Dave's feel for German Shepherds and undisputed knowledge of the breed has made him especially well known amongst GSD and Rottweiler enthusiasts.

His work is not restricted to these breeds by any means. He handles approximately 120 dogs per week through varied work activities and has covered every breed imaginable, with a wealth of knowledge on all.

He has an affinity to all breeds, owning a little cavachon himself, and is very good with TLC and patience.
